
Editor, English Language Arts

Company Description

Education 2020 is a leading provider of core and elective instruction in virtual and blended learning environments for students in grades 6–12. Its innovative learning models facilitate individualized learning for students. Emphasizing instructional content, e2020's programs help students recover and accrue credits for graduation, participate in Advanced Placement[®] courses, and prepare for assessments.

Job Description

Education2020 seeks an English Language Arts editor for grades 6–12 in the New York City office. The editor is responsible for curriculum development, including planning, writing, editing, and reviewing web-based ELA lessons for middle school and high school students. The editor should know best teaching practices for secondary ELA and have a keen eye.

Responsibilities

Write, edit, and review interactive online ELA lessons for grades 6–12

Collaborate with outside editorial vendors for lesson development

Align ELA lessons to Common Core and key state standards

Deliver quality editorial components on time

Assure continuity of pedagogy in all ELA courses for Education2020

Team with the production group to create innovative components

Communicate efficiently and effectively with other teams

Develop relationships with educators to provide input on coursework

Requirements

ELA teaching experience and/or curriculum writing; experience as a high school English teacher strongly preferred

Editorial experience; focus on secondary ELA instruction preferred

Bachelor's degree in English, education, or related field (master's degree preferred)

Excellent attention to detail

Exceptional written communication skills

Willingness to provide critical feedback

Creative thinking, flexibility, and resourcefulness

Comfort with a deadline-oriented, collaborative environment

Equal Opportunity Employer, M/F/V/D, and a member of E-Verify